

ASSESSMENT FOR SEWER APPROVED

City Council Met in Special Session to Hear Remonstrances Against The Roll.

SEVERAL CHANGES WERE MADE

Property Owners on Brown Street Not Required to Pay the Assessment
Made.

A special session of the city council was held Tuesday evening to hear remonstrances against the assessments for the Bruce street sewer which was constructed from Poplar to Pine streets.

A remonstrance filed by eight property owners was filed and read as follows:

To the Board of Public Works of the city of Seymour:

Gentlemen:—We the undersigned citizens and property owners and free holders, residing in Block Six in said city, and owning the real estate therein do hereby earnestly protest against the proposed assessment of our property for the construction of the Bruce street or hospital sewer for the reasons following:

We now have a sewer on Brown street for which we were assessed and for which we paid in 1907, which sewer is adequate for all our present needs and for all time to come and we have never yet found any use for our said Brown street sewer, and none of the undersigned are in any way connected with said sewer and do not receive any service or benefit from the one we already have.

The proposed Bruce street sewer could never be of any possible use or benefit to us or to our property. We have neither necessity nor use for a sewer on both sides of our property.

Having paid heretofore for all the sewerage we could ever possibly use in the construction of the Brown street sewer we can not look upon any additional assessment for a sewer on the Bruce street side of our property except as an unlawful taking of private property and a trespass on our rights. Whoever wants and will be benefitted by a sewer on Bruce street should pay the same.

Respectfully Submitted,
John F. Albering, J. B. Keith and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gaghen, Eugene Ireland, Harmon Meyer, Nellie Brocke, Myrtle Sprenger and Carl Brunow, Sr.

Several of the property owners who remonstrated against the assessment were present and stated that they did not think that the sewer would benefit their property to the amount of the assessment.

Eugene Ireland was at the meeting and stated that as his property faced on Brown street the sewer was of no benefit to him whatever. The property owned by Mr. Gaghen and Mr. Brunow also fronts on Brown street and they objected to the assessment for the same reason given by Mr. Ireland. It was explained by city engineer E. B. Douglass that when the Brown street sewer was constructed the property facing on Bruce street was assessed and that it was thought fair to assess that the property owners on Brown street should be assessed a small amount for the Bruce street sewer.

The matter was discussed at some length and it was finally agreed that the property of Mr. Ireland, Mr. Gaghen and Mr. Brunow which faced on Brown street should not be assessed. The total assessments for the three properties amount to $7.50 and was transferred to the assessment of the city.

After the remonstrances were heard the assessment roll was adopted and ordered transferred to the books of the city treasurer.

Before the meeting adjourned the bonds of the Jackson County Loan and Trust Company for $2,500 and of the First National Bank for $1,500 both of which were given by the American Surety Company of New York were approved. The bonds were required as the banks were selected as public depositories for the city's money.

EXCELLENT SERVICE.

M. E. Church Crowded Last Evening
For Union Meeting.

A large crowd completely filled the lecture room of the First M. E. church Tuesday evening for the union meetings which are being continued this week by the churches of Seymour. The sermon was delivered by Rev. H. R. Booch, of the St. Paul's Evangelical church. The sermon was a strong exposition of the story of the rich young man who came to Jesus, and was greatly appreciated by the audience.

The service this evening will be held at the German M. E. church and Dr. C. E. Asbury, of the First M. E. church will deliver the address.

WILL ERRECT NEW BANK BUILDING

Seymour National Bank Will Build
New Home at Corner of Chestnut Street and St. Louis Avenue.

WILL BEGIN WORK ABOUT MAY 1

When Building is Completed it Will Be One of Most Modern Bank Buildings in Southern Indiana.

The Seymour National Bank will erect an imposing new bank building this summer at the corner of Chestnut street and St. Louis avenue upon the site now owned by them and occupied by the Steinwedel Clothing Company. The work on the new building will begin about May 1, and the officers hope to be able to occupy the building by September 1.

The new building will be one of the most modern business houses from the architectural standpoint, in the city, and every convenience will be provided to accommodate the growing business of the bank. Definite plans have not yet been approved, but two different methods of improving the building are under consideration, either of which would afford commodious quarters.

According to one of the plans a large three story building will be erected, with the accommodations for the bank on the first floor. In the second story a number of elegant office rooms would be arranged and on the third several large rooms would be constructed which would be suitable for assembly or lodge purposes. The lot has a frontage of twenty-five feet on Chestnut street and is one hundred sixty feet deep.

Another plan is under consideration which if it is adopted would require the improvement of St. Louis avenue along the side of the lot. This plan contemplates a large two story building the entire length of the lot. The bank would occupy the ground floor with the office rooms on the second floor. The entrance for the office rooms, however, would be on the avenue. Should this plan be accepted it is the intention to pave the avenue with brick, bringing the sidewalk and the street to the same level. This would greatly improve the appearance of the street and provide an additional number of desirable office rooms.

The new building will be quite an improvement for Chestnut street and add much to appearance of the business district. The bank has been very successful during the past few years, and under the management of president H. C. Johnson has become one of the strongest financial institutions in the county.

To my friends and former patrons of the Rustic: I wish to state that I am not connected with the place any more. If you ask me I will tell you why. FRANK J. MACKEY.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. H. Resiner will move into their new home in the Read-Jordan addition this week. The residence is very convenient and modern in every particular.

RESIGNATION OF
MANAGER FILED

Carl Brunow Will Retire From His Position With Seymour Mutual Telephone Company.

SELECTED MANAGER LAST JULY

Successor Has Not Been Named, But Several Experienced Electricians are Under Consideration.

Carl Brunow resigned as manager of the Seymour Mutual Telephone Company Tuesday afternoon, his resignation to take effect January 15. He was selected as manager of the company July 23, following the resignation of E. Lewis Mitchell, who served as manager from the time the company was organized.

Before accepting the management of the telephone company Mr. Brunow was manager of the Brunow Cigar Company, and he states he is resigning his present position as he feels that the business of the cigar company requires his personal attention. While he has been in charge of the Mutual Company several extensive improvements have been made and a number of county lines have been added to the switch board. During the past few months a new section to the switch board has been added by which a large number of new subscribers could be accommodated. While in charge of the telephone plant the retiring manager was at all times accommodating and courteous to the patrons.

Mr. Brunow's successor has not yet been selected, although several competent and experienced electricians and telephone men are under consideration. The stockholders of the company will hold their annual meeting within a few days when the board of directors will be elected and they will decide the matter as soon as possible.

The management of the local plant is somewhat difficult as the system which is installed here is one of the most modern in use, and much different from that which is installed in many other places. The new manager will probably be an electrician who has had experience with the system used here and who is recommended by the Western Electrical Company which installed the plant.

COLD WAVE COMING.

Some More Real Winter Weather is Promised by Bureau.

Winter is not yet over, according to the forecast of the weather bureau, who promises some real winter weather for this vicinity. The weather man says the cold wave is on the way and may reach this part of the state within the next twenty-four hours. He does not state just how cold it will get but promises that it will be cold enough to suit the lovers of cold weather.

But the cold wave is not all that is predicted, for the weather bureau says there will be rain and snow in this vicinity during the next few days.

BLIND JUSTICE
IS SUSTAINED

Indiana Supreme Court Upholds Discussion Rendered By William H.
Daly of Brownstown.

GIVEN IN A RAILROAD CASE

In Which Baltimore & Ohio Was the Plaintiff.—Case was Appealed in 1908.

William H. Daly, the blind magistrate of Brownstown, has demonstrated that he knows the law, the Indiana Supreme Court having sustained a decision rendered by him in 1908.

The decision was given in the case of the State ex rel the Baltimore & Ohio vs. Justice Daly to compel him to approve a bond, grant an appeal and furnish a transcript of the proceedings of the lower court. In 1908 in a case against the B. & O. S-W. heard by Justice Daly, he gave a judgment of $19 and costs against the road. Following the decision an appeal bond with no penalty attached was left with a clerk at the Justice's office during his absence. After the time limit for filing a legal bond had expired the road brought suit to compel the magistrate to approve the bond and grant the appeal.

The case was taken from Daly's court to the Scott circuit court where it was heard by Judge Shea and decision favorable to Daly was rendered.

The road then carried the case to the higher tribunal. The opinion in the decision just handed down was written by Judge Cox who took his place on the bench January 2. It holds that because the method of appeal to a higher court is governed by statutory enactment an appeal bond, which omitted the penalty is invalid.

Getting Acquainted

By JOANNA SINGLE

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press

Joanna handed her husband his little cup of black coffee across the pretty table. But Ward Corson, seeing appeal in the sweet face he knew by heart, answered the glance by a question. They were alone, as usual, and the babies had been long asleep.

"Anything wrong, dear? Babies cross. Kate rampant?"

The young wife laughed at this, for Cook Katie was as meek as a rabbit.

"No, Katie is perfect, and the babies are angels, and though I must say I dreaded leaving my own house, this flat is the easiest place to keep up, and such a nice neighborhood! I quite like the looks of nearly every soul that lives within blocks!" She sipped her coffee and sighed.

Ward chuckled. "Does the sigh mean sorrow that the neighbors are nice?"

"It means that they don't seem to find out soon enough that I am nice, and I will say that I'm lonesome here. It doesn't seem that they intend to make friends. It isn't as if we came here from another part of the city—we're strangers even in the state. It isn't even as if we were horrid climbers! I don't care for a mere calling and pink tea list, or for daily 'bridge-fights,' as you call them, but I do want to make friends. Most of the neighbors have called, and I have returned the calls. But that's all."

"Oh, well, the minute I can be sure the business will warrant our staying here for good we'll buy or build our own home, and things will be different. Flat dwellers are counted transients in most places. How about the folks next door, Rancey has been very decent to me."

"Well, she called, and I returned, and she occasionally borrows some coffee or something, and I do the same. And we smile over the fence and mention the weather, and that's all! It makes me lonesome to see the other women, mostly about my age, too, running in and out of each other's houses."

"Well," he comforted, "I've noticed that things often come in bunches. They'll come 'round in time. I haven't seen any better-dressed or mannered young person than you hereabouts, and you're miles prettier than any of 'em." She blushed girlishly at the husband's opinion. "And you're a better housekeeper than anybody—things always look just ready for a function."

"They are," she asserted with pride. "Mrs. Rancey has been cleaning and stewing for days because of a little luncheon she gives tomorrow to the women of the neighborhood—all but me. Why do you suppose she didn't ask me? And she is the sort of housekeeper who lets everything get dirty and then has wild spells of cleaning! I can see her from the sitting room window fussing about. It makes me wild to show them what I can do without the least fuss! I'm sure I could teach her something about a salad."

The two went into the den where the man got his beloved evening paper, and the little wife pricked at a bit of sewing. She essayed more talk, but he hardly heard her, so she desisted.

The next morning she sat and watched her three-year baby amuse the two-year baby on the floor, and turned from time to time to her window, where she saw her neighbors busy with silver and china and cut glass. A florist's boy left flowers and a delicatessen wagon made deliveries. A smart negro cateress arrived on the scene, and from the open window much talk arose. It was a clear, splendid day, for the heavy spring rains had suddenly ceased, and April was a marvel of birdsong and greenery. Cook Katie, in the shining kitchen, was crooning an Irish song.

Joanne, looking and listening, felt her hurt grow a little. She might have been asked, she thought, if she "had" been in the neighborhood there but two months. And she felt herself quite the kind of woman she saw at the Ranceys.

An hour or two passed and before noon she had worked herself into quite an unhappy and resentful mood. She resolved to bide her time and retaliate. Once in her own house, the lovely one she and Ward had for years been planning when they should finally have established themselves permanently in a business city, and she wouldn't even know these people! She glanced again from the window. Then she heard a crash in the Rancey house, a scream, and then some scolding and expostulation. In a moment the smart negress, her hat on, swung wrathfully out of the kitchen, still talking.

"No, I ain't gwine stay, an' be scolded! Wouldn't a-dropped dat salad nohow ef I hadn't been nervous long a-bein' 'bossed,' an' I'm glad I done bruk de old dish! I'm gwine home!" And despite expostulations, she departed.

Mrs. Rancey stood a moment, irresolutely in the door, and then the tears rolled down her cheeks. She looked up and saw Joanna.

"Oh, what 'shall' I do?" She wailed. "Here I have ten women due for luncheon in an hour, and everything at a critical point, and that 'creature' dropped the salad and broke the best dish I own! These independent hirelings—I'd enjoy 'whipping' her!"

Joanna smothered instantly a little feeling of satisfaction, and with her usual generosity rose to the occasion. She let her gaze rest a moment on the man fixing the roof above her troubled neighbor, and then called to her:

"Let me lend you my Katie and my salad dish, and the material to make another salad—I have tomatoes and lobster—and if—"

Troubles, indeed, come not singly. Another crash and a scream interrupted the glad acceptance Mrs. Rancey opened her mouth to make. She rushed inside, and Joanna ran downstairs, and followed, panting.

The man on the roof had loosened a lot of plaster which had fallen and taken the skylight in bits upon the pretty table set beneath. Everything was smashed and damaged beyond repair.

Mrs. Corson put her arm about her weeping neighbor.

"My dear, don't waste a moment crying now! You can let everything stand as it is here in the dining room—"

"But how can I tell all those women what's happened? It was my turn and I wanted everything perfect!"

"It isn't too late—most of your food is untouched in the kitchen. I'll send you my cook and she can help yours bring everything to my house. You see, we've lived there by a few weeks and everything is as fresh as if we had just prepared for guests. You can have my dining room and everything in it, and we can get up a salad over there. We can send in a hurry call for more flowers, and everything will be in perfect shape in spite of the accident! Won't you? You will be 'perfectly welcome.' Mrs. Rancey wiped away her tears on the tea-towel she had inadvertently snatched up. She stared at her pretty, quiet, well-bred neighbor.

"Do you actually mean it? I don't think I could be as—forgiving as that!"

"Forgiving? What has there been to forgive? I don't see how any real neighbor could do less. I'll be glad to have you—I can take the babies and come over here and let you have the house."

"The idea! Well, I'll have to confess! I feel 'cheap,' and horrid. I knew I ought to ask you to this luncheon, but I deliberately kept you out because I was jealous. I have always rather led things in this neighborhood, and I saw that you were so sweet and clever, and such a perfect housekeeper that you might supplant me. I was—a cat! If you still want me to come—I will on condition that you come as guest of honor. Will you?" Joanna laughed.

"Not quite that—but I will dress and be one of you, if you like? With pleasure—and never mind the past. We had better get to work this minute. Katie," she called, "come over here and let Mrs. Rancey tell you what to do! I'll come take the babies for awhile." She turned to her new friend, who was gladly giving swift directions to her own maid, and continued:

"I will go and set the table and you follow as quick as you like. As soon as you get over I will dress, and we'll be all ready." She took up a little tray of cakes and sweets and carried them over to her own kitchen.

At dinner that night Ward Corson looked at his wife's flushed and happy face.

"Neighbors been decent today, eh?"

"Well—I've been decent to the neighbors—it seems to work both ways!" She told him all about it. But the recital would fill a book of very respectable size. A woman can make quite a text of a woman's function!

Emergency Mirror.

Those walking in one of the quiet streets in the fifties in the block west of Fifth avenue, says the New York Sun, saw the other day a party of girls in an automobile which had come, judging by their wind-blown appearance, from one of the up-Hudson towns. The motor car passed by the curb and the chauffeur hauled out a black laprobe and hung it on the outside of the glass storm shield, making an effective mirror. Then the girls produced their town hats from somewhere and, taking turns sitting in the front seat, they rearranged their headgear before the looking glass. They went at it as carefully and with as much ease as though they were before their own mirrors at home. When they had all finished the car swung out on the avenue with as proper a cargo as anyone could wish to see.

Practical Optimism.

"You are an optimist?" "I am," replied Mr. Dustin Stax. "I not only hope for the best, but I make practical arrangements to get it."

A Fizzle.

Ripley (at first night production)—I understand that Penley had a hand in this comedy.

Panner—Hand, I should say he put his foot in it!

One From the Cashier.

The harmless customer leaned across the cigar counter and smiled engagingly at the new cashier. As he handed across the amount his dinner check called for he ventured a bit of aimless converse, for he was of that sort.

"Funny," said he, "how easy it is to spend money."

"Well," snapped the cashier as she fed his fare to the register, "if money was intended for you to hold on to the mint would be turning out coins with handles on 'em."

Had Money in Lumps.

Charles H. Rosenberg of Bavaria had lumps on his shoulders, elbows, and hips when he arrived here from Hamburg on the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria. In fact, there was a series of smaller lumps along his spine, much like a mountain range, as it is presented on a bas-relief map.

The lumps were about the size of good Oregon apples, and as Rosenberg passed before the immigration doctor for observation, the doctor said softly to himself, "See that lump." Then he asked Mr. Rosenberg to step aside.

"You seem like a healthy man," said the doctor, "but I cannot pass you until I know the origin of those lumps on your body." "Ah, it is not a sickness," laughed the man from Bavaria. "Those swellings is money."

Taking off his coat he broke open a sample lump and showed that it contained $500 in American bank notes. He informed the doctor that he had $11,000 in all, with which he was going to purchase an apple orchard in Oregon.

He was admitted to the country.—New York Tribune.

Why He Laughed.

Miss Mattie belonged to the old south, and she was entertaining a guest of distinction.

On the morning following his arrival she told Tillie, the little colored maid, to take a pitcher of fresh water to Mr. Firman's room, and to say that Miss Mattie sent him her compliments, and that if he wanted a bath, the bathroom was at his service.

When Tillie returned she said: "I tol' him, Miss Mattie, en' he laughed fit to bust' hisself."

"Why did he laugh, Tillie?"

"I dunno."

"What did you tell him?"

"Jus' what you tol' me to."

"Tillie, tell me exactly what you said."

"I banged de doah, and I said, 'Mr. Firman, Miss Mattie sends you her lub, and she says, 'Now you can get up and wash yo'self!'—Lippincott's Magazine.

Where He Was Queer.

The negro, on occasions, displays a fine discrimination in the choice of words.

"Who's the best white-washer in town?" inquired the new resident.

"Ale Hall am a bo'nd 'tist with a whitewash brush, sah," answered the colored patriarch eloquently.

"Well, tell him to come and whitewash my chicken house tomorrow."

Uncle Jacob shook his head dubiously.

"Ah don' believe, sah, ah'd engage Ale Hall to whitewash a chicken house, sah."

"Why, didn't you say he was a good whitewasher?"

"Yes, sah, a poweful good whitewasher, sah; but mighty queer about a chicken house, sah, mighty queer!" —Mack's National Monthly.

MAKE UP YOUR MIND.

If you'll make up your mind to be contented with your lot and with the optimists agree that trouble's soon forgot.

You'll be surprised to find, I guess, despite misfortune's darts, what constant springs of happiness lie hid in human hearts.

What sunny gleams and golden dreams the passing years unfold, how soft and warm the lovelight beams when you are growing old.

Acted Like the Genuine.

"The landlady says that new boarder is a foreign nobleman."

"Bogus, I'll bet."

"Oh, I don't know. He may be the real thing. He hasn't paid her a cent as yet."

More Human Nature.

Grouchily—By denying myself three ten-cent cigars daily for the past 20 years I figure that I have saved $2,100.

Moxley—Is that so?

Grouchily—Yes. Say, let me have a chew of your tobacco, will you?

Thanks to Burnt Cork.

"Gosh! But the colored race is a-comin' to the front fast!" whispered innocent Uncle Hiram, at the vaudeville show, as the black-face comedian was boisterously applauded.

"Yes, indeed," smiled the city man; "anyone can see that that fellow is a self-made negro."

Lo, the Rich Indian.

The per capita wealth of the Indian is approximately $2,100, that for other Americans is only a little more than $1,300. The lands owned by the Indians are rich in oil, timber and other natural resources of all kinds. Some of the best timber land in the United States is owned by Indians.

The value of their agricultural lands runs up in the millions. The ranges which they possess support about 500,000 sheep and cattle, owned by less-ees, bringing in a revenue of more than $272,000 to the various tribes besides providing feed for more than 1,500,000 head of horses, cattle, sheep and goats belonging to the Indians themselves. Practically the only asphalt deposits in the United States are on Indian lands.—Red Man.

No Sing for Her.

"Slip me a brace of cackles!" ordered the chesty-looking man with a bored air, as he perched on the first stool in the luncheon room.

"A what?" asked the waitress, as she placed a glass of water before him.

"Adam and Eve flat on their backs! A pair of sunnysiders!" said the young man in an exasperated tone.

"You got me, kid," returned the waitress. "Watcha want?"

"Eggs up," said the young man. "Eggs," the kind that come before the hen or after, I never knew which."

"Why didn't you say so in the first place?" asked the waitress. "You'd a had 'em by this time."

"Well, of all things—" said the young man.

"I knew what he was drivin' at all the time," began the waitress as the young man departed. "But he's one of them fellers that thinks they can get by with anything. He don't know that they're using plain English now in restaurants."

The League of Politeness.

The League of Politeness has been formed in Berlin. It aims at inculcating better manners among the people of Berlin. It was founded upon the initiative of Fraulein Cecile Meyer, who was inspired by an existing organization in Rome. In deference to the parent organization the Berlin league has chosen the Italian motto, "Pro gentilezza." This will be emblazoned upon an attractive little medal worn where Germans are accustomed to wear the insignia of orders. The idea is that a glance at the "talisman" will annihilate any inclination to indulge in bad temper or discourteous language. "Any polite person" is eligible for membership.

The "Country Churchyard."

Those who recall Gray's "Elegy in a Country Churchyard" will remember that the peaceful spot where "the rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep" is identified with St. Giles', Stoke Poges, Buckinghamshire. In the prospect page of a recent issue of the Gazette there appears an order in council providing that ordinary interments are henceforth forbidden in the churchyard.

How She Learned.

The mother of a family of three small children was discussing their comparative precocity with a friend. "John was very slow at everything," she said, referring to her oldest. "Sam was a little better, and Edith, the baby, is the smartest of all. She picks up everything quick as can be."

Master John, who had been listening, now contributed his share of the conversation.

"Humph!" he exclaimed. "I know why her learns so quick. It's 'cause her has us and we didn't have us."

Economy.

The late former Governor Allen D. Candler of Georgia was famous in the south for his quaint humor.

"Governor Candler," said a Gainesville man, "once abandoned cigars for a pipe at the beginning of the year. He stuck to his resolve till the year's end. Then he was heard to say:

"By actual calculation, I have saved by smoking a pipe instead of cigars this year $208. But where is it?"

Moslem Traditions.

Ramadan is the month exalted by Moslems above all others. In that month the Koran—according to Moslem tradition—was brought down by Gabriel from heaven and delivered to men in small sections. In that month, Mohammed was accustomed to retire from Mecca to the cave of Hira, for prayer and meditation. In that month Abraham, Moses and other prophets received their divine revelations. In that month the "doors of heaven are always open, the passages to hell are shut, and the devils are chained." So run the traditions.—The Christian Herald.

A Medical Compromise.

"You had two doctors in consultation last night, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"What did they say?"

"Well, one recommended one thing and the other recommended something else."

"A deadlock, eh?"

"No, they finally told me to mix 'em!"

Hard on the Mare.

Twice, as the bus slowly wended its way up the steep Cumberland Gap, the door at the rear opened and slammed. At first these inside paid little heed; but the third time demanded to know why they should be disturbed in this fashion.

"Whist," cautioned the driver, "don't spake so loud; she'll overhear us."

"Who?"

"The mare. Spake low! Shure, O'm desavin th' creature. Every toime she tears th' door clea, she thinks wot o' yez is gettin' down ter walk up th' hill, an' that sort o' raises her spirits!"—Success Magazine.

Exaggeration.

On her arrival in New York Mme. Sara Bernhardt, replying to a compliment on her youthful appearance, said: "The secret of my youth? It is the good God—and then, you know, I work all the time. But I am a great-grandmother," she continued, thoughtfully, "so how can these many compliments be true? I am afraid my friends are exaggerating."

Mme. Bernhardt's laugh, spontaneous as a girl's, prompted a chorus of "No, no!"

"Yes," said the actress, "unconscious exaggeration, like the French nurse on the boulevard. Our boulevards are much more crowded than your streets, you know, and, although we have numerous accidents, things aren't quite as bad as the nurse suggested."

"Her little charge, a boy of six, begged her to stop a while in a crowd, surrounding an automobile accident. 'Please wait,' the little boy said, 'Want to see the man who was run over.' 'No; hurry,' his nurse answered. 'There will be plenty more to see further on.'"

A Retraction.

"You shouldn't have called that man a pig," said the conciliatory man.

"That's right," replied the vindictive person. "There is no sense in implying that he's worth 40 cents a pound to anybody."

Blissful Ignorance.

"Were you nervous when you proposed to your wife?" asked the sentimental person.

"No," replied Mr. Meekton; "but if I could have foreseen the next ten years I would have been."

Economy in Art.

"Of course," said Mr. Sirius Barker, "I want my daughter to have some sort of an artistic education. I think I'll have her study singing."

"Why not art or literature?"

"Art spoils canvas and paint and literature wastes reams of paper. Singing merely produces a temporary disturbance of the atmosphere."

Home Thought.

"It must have been frightful," said Mrs. Bossim to her husband, who was in the earthquake. "Tell me what was your first thought when you awakened in your room at the hotel and heard the alarm."

"My first thought was of you," answered Mr. Bossim.

"How noble!"

"Yes. First thing I knew, a vase off the mantel caught me on the ear; then a chair whirled in my direction, and when I jumped to the middle of the room four or five books and a framed picture struck me all at once."

Even after saying that, he affected to wonder what made her so angry for the remainder of the evening.—Mack's National Monthly.

New Process of Staining Glass.

The art of coloring glass has been lost and refound, jealously guarded and maliciously stolen so many times in the history of civilization that it seems almost impossible to say anything new on glass staining. Yet a process has been discovered for making the stained glass used in windows which is a departure from anything known at the present time. What the Venetians and the Phoenicians knew of it we cannot tell.

The glass first receives its design in mineral colors and the whole is then fired in a heat so intense that the coloring matter and the glass are indissolubly fused. The most attractive feature of this method is that the surface acquires a peculiar pebbled character in the heat, so that when the glass is in place the lights are delightfully soft and mellow.

In making a large window in many shades each panel is separately moulded and bent and the sections are assembled in a metal frame.

Our Voices.

I think our conversational soprano, as sometimes overheard in the cars, arising from a group of young persons who have taken the train at one of our great industrial centers, for instance, young persons of the female sex, we will say, who have bustled in full dressed, engaged in loud, strident speech, and who, after free discussion, have fixed on two or more double seats, which having secured, they proceeded to eat apples and hand round daguerotypes—I say, I think the conversational soprano, heard under these circumstances, would not be among the allurements the old enemy would put in requisition were he getting up a new temptation of St. Anthony.

There are sweet voices among us, we all know, and voices not musical, it may be, to those who hear them for the first time, yet sweeter to us than any we shall hear until we listen to some warbling angel in the overture to that eternity of blissful harmonies we hope to enjoy. But why should I tell lies? If my friends love me, it is because I try to tell the truth. I never heard but two voices in my life that frightened me by their sweetness.—Holmes.

What About Brain Food?

This Question Came Up in the Recent Trial for Libel.

A "Weekly" printed some criticisms of the claims made for our foods. It evidently did not fancy our reply printed in various newspapers, and brought suit for libel. At the trial some interesting facts came out.

Some of the chemical and medical experts differed widely.

The following facts, however, were quite clearly established:

Analysis of brain by an unquestionable authority, Geoghegan, shows of Mineral Salts, Phosphoric Acid and Potash combined (Phosphate of Potash), 2.91 per cent of the total, 5.33 of all Mineral Salts.

This is over one-half.

Beaunis, another authority, shows "Phosphoric Acid combined" and Potash 72.44 per cent from a total of 101.07.

Considerable more than one-half of Phosphate of Potash.

Analysis of Grape-Nuts shows: Potassium and Phosphorus, (which join and make Phosphate of Potash), is considerable more than one-half of all the mineral salts in the food.

Dr. Geo. W. Carey, an authority on the constituent elements of the body, says: "The gray matter of the brain is controlled entirely by the inorganic cell-salt, Potassium Phosphate (Phosphate of Potash). This salt unites with albumen and by the addition of oxygen creates nerve fluid or the gray matter of the brain. Of course, there is a trace of other salts and other organic matter in nerve fluid, but Potassium Phosphate is the chief factor, and has the power within itself to attract, by its own law of affinity, all things needed to manufacture the elixir of life."

Further on he says: "The beginning and end of the matter is to supply the lacking principle, and in molecular form, exactly as nature furnishes it in vegetables, fruits and grain. To supply deficiencies—this is the only law of cure."

The natural conclusion is that if Phosphate of Potash is the needed mineral element in brain and you use food which does not contain it, you have brain fog because its daily loss is not supplied.

On the contrary, if you eat food known to be rich in this element, you place before the life forces that which nature demands for brain-building.

In the trial a sneer was uttered because Mr. Post announced that he had made years of research in this country and some clinics of Europe, regarding the effect of the mind on digestion of food.

But we must be patient with those who sneer at facts they know nothing about. Mind does not work well on a brain that is broken down by lack of nourishment.

A peaceful and evenly poised mind is necessary to good digestion.

Worry, anxiety, fear, hate, &c., &c., directly interfere with or stop the flow of Pyloric, the digestive juice of the mouth, and also interfere with the flow of the digestive juices of stomach and pancreas.

Therefore, the mental state of the individual has much to do (more than suspected) with digestion.

This trial has demonstrated:

That Brain is made of Phosphate of Potash as the principal Mineral Salt, added to albumen and water.

That Grape-Nuts contains that element as more than one-half of all its mineral salts.

"Now, Arthur," said his father, "you've been going to school long enough to write decently. Don't you know how to make a figure three?"
"Sure," said the boy. "You put your pencil on the paper and then you shiver."

Mean of Her.
Mrs. Galey (back from the mountains)—Well, my dear, did you keep open house during my absence?
Galey (earnestly)—I should say I didn't, Louise; why, there wasn't a night that I didn't lock the doors at nine o'clock.

Mrs. Galey—Yes? And where did you go then?

THE EXPLANATION.

The Professor—You are better fed than taught.

The Stout Student—I reckon you're right. You teach me, but I feed myself.

The Great Art of Dying.
To die without rebellion and without weakness is the masterpiece of a man. A mountain guide—whose name the London Daily Mail does not mention in narrating the story of his heroism—with two others, was leading a party over one of the most dangerous passes of the higher Alps.

The men, as is usual, were tied together by a long rope. As they scaled a wall of ice they slipped on the edge of a frightful chasm. The guide was at the end of the rope.

Without his weight there was a chance for the others to regain their footing; with it, his experienced eye told him, there was none. With instant courage he drew his knife from his belt and said quietly to the man next him:

"Tell, mother how it happened, Edmund."

He cut the rope and fell, never to be seen again.

What Fashion Does

"Make it strong!" ordered the young woman who had dropped in just at tea-time. "In my present condition I need strengthening."

"You don't look particularly fragile," scoffed the hostess. "What's the trouble?"

"Hats!" said the visitor sepulchral. "There really isn't any use of saying any more than that one word, but I am so filled with emotion that I've got to get it out of my system. For the last two years every time I've gone to buy a hat I've had to be resuscitated with kind words and the assurance that they never can be worse than they are now, so hope on! But at last I've given up hope."

"I fully expect that some day when I go to buy a hat the lovely golden-haired salesperson will trot out a baby grand piano with its insides excavated and a fringe of tin cans around the edge and laughingly tell me it's the 'vur-ry latest style.' That's about the only thing they haven't sold us in the guise of headgear! We've worn cartwheels and peach baskets and bushel baskets and pancakes on our benighted heads and were pretty well trained and humble and all that—but today almost finished me!"

"You see, if you can get used to this winter's hats gradually the shock isn't so bad, but when they burst upon you in one overwhelming explosion with no warning it may be almost fatal."

"All summer and fall I've been over in a Michigan summer resort, where we didn't wear hats at all. You rather forget that there are such things, together with trolley cars and city noises. I saw pictures of hats in the newspaper advertisements, but somehow they didn't seem real—they were merely bad dreams. But today, when I really tackled the question, I woke up with a bump! Why, the things are real! They actually do exist!"

"I wandered around one hat department and my spirits kept getting lower and lower. I don't know when I've felt so sad—not since my French poodle choked to death on a chicken bone! When the polite clerks asked me mechanically if I was waited on I just waved them away speechlessly. It was all I could do to burst up under the strain without bursting into bitter tears. Most of the hats were just like sections of overgrown stovepipes and apparently were designed to cover you up completely to your neck. Of course this saves a lot of time in dressing the hair, because any coiffure is completely ruined and smashed by putting on the things. All over the department I could see distracted customers with their locks streaming wild and free, just like inmates of a lunatic asylum. These people looked as though their heads had been sat on and without exception their faces indicated that they had just heard bad news from home."

"Would you like to try it on?" a clerk murmured at my elbow.

"I was holding in my hand a rod of gloomy velvet with a frizzled rosebud attached to one edge. It appealed to me as a daring and dubious undertaking, so I got under the hat. The effect would have moved a heart of stone, but that woman never winked an eyelash. She even went the length of saying it was 'chawming!' Then she caught my accusing eye and hastened to hedge.

"You know," she said soothingly, "that you aren't expected to have any hair this season. You are allowed only one eye and part of a nose. At least, that is all that is visible after your hat is clamped on. Really, when you get used to it, it isn't so bad!"

"I reminded her sternly that they say one can get used to hanging in time. From that hat we went from bad to worse. At the tenth I murmured to the clerk: 'Do I look like this in this?'"

"She glanced over at the customer whom I indicated. The customer had just put on an extinguisher with gold braid and a dewdew. It hid her head clear below her ear on one side and on the other the brim extended until it trailed on her shoulder and you could see just the tip of her nose outside it."

"That?" asked the clerk, evidently taking my tone for one of envious awe. "Oh, my, yes! Only more so!"

"Then take this away," I told her, violently, "because I have relatives with family pride and they are capable of walling me up alive in the cellar to 'hide their disgrace if I go home looking like that!"

"But you've got to be in style!" she remonstrated. "There's no use buying a new hat that looks like three years back, and, besides, there aren't any in stock but this kind! So what are you going to do? You can't help yourself!"

"Even so," I told her. "Oh, I'll buy a section of stovepipe eventually, but first I want to call on all my friends so they may remember my face as it once was. After I put on one of those things they won't be able to tell whether it is I or my worst enemy."

"She seemed quite indignant and pitying, and said, 'Vur-ry well!' in a pained voice. Then I tottered away, bawling the fact that I am a woman and can't go in and buy a modest, respectable-looking derby hat and keep the respect of my fellow men!"

"If you feel better now," said the hostess, "I'll show you my new hat! It's worse than anything you've described, and I am wildly in love with it!"

LORD KITCHENER TRIUMPHS OVER THE BUREAUCRATS

The British government has invited Field Marshal Lord Kitchener to become a member of the committee on imperial defense, and Lord Kitchener has accepted.

Thus is a place found for the man who has been called "Europe's greatest soldier." An ungrateful government has done its best to shelve him, but now finds itself unable longer to withstand the widespread and insistent demand that he be employed in the service of his country.

It was known some time before he quitted the supreme command of the Indian army that relations between Lord Kitchener and the home authorities were anything but smooth, and the reason for this was not very far to seek. Lord Kitchener resolutely declined to color his reports and other documents to suit the convenience of the government, and for this independence of character he soon paid the penalty. From that moment he was a marked man, and the bureaucrats started plans for shelving him.

But the people of England were slowly but surely awakening to the fact that, while the efficiency of the British army was being gravely questioned, the nation's greatest soldier and finest type of military organizer was being shelved. Instantly a demand arose for his employment. Men who had served with him in Egypt, South Africa and elsewhere offered to retire to make room for Kitchener of Khartoum; the popular clamor became louder and the government was plainly perturbed. Now the agitation had reached such proportions that no course was open to the war authorities which did not involve the giving to the field marshal of a post where he could be something and do something. A place on the imperial defense committee was the result.

The attempt to shelve Lord Kitchener was everywhere regarded as the most reckless of military extravagance. There is no soldier in England with the experience of the field marshal. His conquest of the Sudan and South Africa does not give the measure of his experience, and the conquest of the Sudan did not begin and end with the battle of Omdurman any more than the conquest of South Africa began and ended in a block-house. Having proved his capacity in the field, England sent Lord Kitchener to India in order to apply to her defenses in the east some of that practical common sense for which he is distinguished. Despite all obstacles, he accomplished his task and left India stronger and more self-contained for defensive purposes than at any time since the mutiny. Even critics of his tactics in the field cannot deny Lord Kitchener's capacity as an organizer and administrator.

It is no secret to the bureaucracy that Lord Kitchener is a masterful man. What he wants and insists upon is not place, but power. When the power goes and leaves only the husk of office and emolument, Lord Kitchener begins to pack his bag and to look up a time table. What the bureaucrat likes is a machine that he can control without raising a clamor in the market place. And Lord Kitchener would never be content to become a mere machine.

JAPANESE EXPERT WOULD CREATE GARDEN MONUMENT
M. Hagiwara, the greatest creator of Japanese gardens in the United States, if not in the entire world, recently submitted a unique proposition to the members of the Los Angeles park commission. In effect it is that if the city, through the park board, will guarantee funds which will enable him to construct a Japanese garden in one of the city parks, equal in size and beauty to the one in Golden Gate park, which is his masterpiece, he will give his time and ability to the work, charging the city only the actual trifling amount he is out of pocket through the enterprise.

"Art for art's sake," is Mr. Hagiwara's motto, and all who have seen the indescribably beautiful Japanese garden he has created in San Francisco concede him the position of the greatest artist in his line in this country. Visitors from Japan even have marveled at it and say that there are few gardens in the Flowery Kingdom that equal it and none that excels it. The selfish motive back of his unexpected offer he frankly discloses.

"I want to plan and create one more great example of my art before my work ends," he says. "Here in California is the place for it and if the people of Los Angeles want me to make it here and will provide the ground and the money for material and labor, I will give them a garden that I will be proud to leave behind me as my memorial."

"I should like to undertake it with the understanding that not less than $100,000 will eventually be spent on it—not all at one time, for it will take several years to complete it. Under these conditions I could promise a garden that would be the talk of the world."

AND GO AHEAD SLOWLY.

HIRAM CARPENTER'S WONDERFUL CURE OF PSORIASIS.

"I have been afflicted for twenty years with an obstinate skin disease, called by some M. D.'s, psoriasis, and others leprosy, commencing on my scalp; and in spite of all I could do, with the help of the most skillful doctors, it slowly but surely extended until a year ago this winter it covered my entire person in the form of dry scales. For the last three years I have been unable to do any labor, and suffering intensely all the time. Every morning there would be nearly a dust-ping of scales taken from the sheet on my bed, some of them half as large as the envelope containing this letter. In the latter part of winter my skin commenced cracking open. I tried everything, almost, that could be thought of, without any relief. The 12th of June I started West, in hopes I could reach the Hot Springs. I reached Detroit and was so low I thought I should have to go to the hospital, but finally got as far as Lansing, Mich., where I had a sister living. One Dr. — treated me about two weeks, but did me no good. All thought I had but a short time to live. I earnestly prayed to die. Cracked through the skin all over my back, across my ribs, arms, hands, limbs; feet badly swollen; toe-nails came off; finger-nails dead and hard as a bone; hair dead, dry and lifeless as old straw. O my God! how I did suffer.

"My sister wouldn't give up; said, 'We will try Cuticura.' Some was applied to one hand and arm. Eureka! there was relief; stopped the terrible burning sensation from the word go. They immediately got Cuticura Resolvent, Ointment and Soap. I commenced by taking Cuticura Resolvent three times a day after meals; had a bath once a day, water about blood heat; used Cuticura Soap freely; applied Cuticura Ointment morning and evening. Result: returned to my home in just six weeks from the time I left, and my skin as smooth as this sheet of paper. Hiram E. Carpenter, Henderson, N. Y."

The above remarkable testimonial was written January 19, 1880, and is republished because of the permanency of the cure. Under date of April 22, 1910, Mr. Carpenter wrote from his present home, 610 Walnut St. So., Lansing, Mich.: "I have never suffered a return of the psoriasis and although many years have passed I have not forgotten the terrible suffering I endured before using the Cuticura Remedies."

Not What He Asked For.
A small boy hurried into the corner butcher shop and told the proprietor his mother wanted a nice, tender turkey for Thanksgiving, and she wanted it dressed. The butcher selected just such a bird from the lot in the window, and said, with satisfaction:

"Here's a dandy, my boy—just what your mother wants!"

"No, it ain't!" returned the youth. "That turkey hasn't any clothes on."

Charles Warren, a well known
Mitchell citizen was struck by a B. &
O. S-W. yard engine at that place Monday and instantly killed. He stepped from one track to avoid an approaching passenger and was caught by the yard engine. Warren formerly conducted the B. & O. restaurant at Mitchell and was known to many people in Seymour especially railroad men.

Rev. J. F. Harvey, who left in De-

and was unable to take but little part in the meetings. He will go to Frankfort the latter part of the week to begin a revival.

At the request of old soldiers a bill is to be introduced in the legis-

taxes, or until after they have received their quarterly pensions.

is the fastest time ever made in any made in 4:22 5-5. In a ten-mile trial, fly-

In the twenty-mile trial his time for ten miles was 7:15 3-5.

Whittaker, also on a Merkel, turned off thirty-five miles in 25:21. He was 7 1-5

INDIANA SEEKS NEW TAXING LAW

Sweeping Reforms Suggested by the State Board.

NOW UP TO THE LEGISLATURE

Recommendations Made With the Concurrence of Governor Marshall Ask For Numerous Reforms Looking to the Better Equalization of Taxes in the Hoosier State—Legislature Now Has a Flood of Bills.

Indianapolis, Jan. 11.—In a report laid before the members by the state board of tax commissioners, sweeping reforms in the taxing laws of the state are recommended to the general assembly. The recommendations have been made with the consent of the governor. The issuing of stocks and bonds by domestic corporations should be controlled by law, so as to prevent frauds upon the public and imposition upon depositors, the board said. Concerning promissory notes or other evidences of indebtedness, the board recommends that such evidences be presented annually to the assessing official for listing and indorsement, and that unless such indorsement appears on the notes, etc.,
they shall not be collectible. Power to employ tax ferrets at a rate not to exceed 15 per cent of the total amount collected by such ferrets is also asked.

Going After the Banks.

Objections to the current laws regulating the assessment of banks and trust companies are voiced by the board. Under the law these assessments are made by the township assessor and passed on by the county board of review, with the result that there are ninety-two different bases
for the assessment. The board recommends that a law be enacted classifying banks and trust companies according to the capital, surplus, deposits and earning power, as well as the volume of business done, for taxation purposes, and that the control of assessments be placed in the hands of the state board of tax commissioners, which should be required to assess them as it now assesses other corporate property.

Concerning road tax, the board recommends the repeal of all laws giving individuals and corporations the right to "work out" their road tax by labor on the highway. While it is acknowledged that the evil resulting from the small individual land owner being allowed thus to pay his tax is small, it is said that that resulting from abuses
by corporations, especially the railroads, is very great. The board doubts whether a law exempting the individual and requiring that corporations pay their road tax into the treasury would be constitutional, and hence recommends an absolute repeal of the law and the enactment of one requiring that all road tax be paid in cash.

Governor Marshall and Charles A.
Greathouse, state superintendent of public instruction, have agreed on a proposal to amend the school tax levy laws of the state so as to adjust on what they say is a more equitable basis the collection and distribution of school funds for tuition purposes. Under the present law, school corporations are required to make a levy of 25 cents for a six-months school and 40 cents for a seven-months school, before they may receive aid from the state's deficiency fund, made up from the general collections for tuition purposes, imposed by the state. The governor and Mr. Greathouse propose that the levy shall be made 40 cents for a six-months school and 50 cents for seven months before state aid may be had.

Railway Safety Precautions.

A bill will be introduced in a short time embodying the recommendations
recently made by the railroad commission concerning requirements for the prevention of accidents. The bill will provide that automatic block signal systems shall be installed on all roads where the train movement calls for such a precautionary measure. It will further provide for the "double order" system in handling trains. It will further provide that motormen shall not be placed in charge of interurban cars unless they have had at least one year's experience. It will also provide that interurban companies shall have power to condemn property which causes obstruction of view on interurban curves.

Forty-seven bills were yesterday introduced in the senate, including Senator Proctor's bill to change the local option law from county unit to city,
town and township, and Senator Clark's registration and primary election bills.

Two workmen's compensation bills were introduced, and a bill to create a state highway commission. The "plunder committee" announced fifty-seven appointments of senate employees.

On first roll call for bills in the house fifty-nine bills were introduced,
including primary elections; registration; amendments of workmen's compensation; voters of local option law,
same as the Proctor bill in the senate;
employer's liability. A resolution was offered to amend the state constitution to require all voters to be full-fledged citizens. The same resolution was offered in the senate. A resolution also was offered to ratify the amendment of the United States constitution providing for an income tax.

Women suffering from any form of illness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened,
read and answered by women. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established this confidence between
Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken.

Never has she published a testimonial or used a letter without the written consent of the writer, and never has the Company allowed these confidential letters to get out of their possession, as the hundreds of thousands of them in their files will attest.

Out of the vast volume of experience which Mrs. Pinkham has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge needed in your case. She asks nothing in return except your good will, and her advice has helped thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, should be glad to take advantage of this gener-

United States Senatorship Ties Up Montana Legislature.

Helena, Mont., Jan. 11.—The Montana legislature has taken its first ballot in an effort to select a successor to Thomas H. Carter, Republican. The Democratic vote was divided. Carter led with 31. T. The Democrats tied to secure enough signers for a caucus call in vain, and the indications are now that no decisive vote will be had for a month at least.

NEW SIAMESE TWINS

SEEKING SEPARATION

Filipino Freaks Brought To This Side for Inspection.

New Orleans, Jan. 11.—Lucio and Simplicio Godino, modern Siamese twins, have come to New Orleans all the way from the island of Samar, in the Philippines, in the hope that some of the surgeons here can separate them. The twins are linked together in much the same manner as the more famous twins from Siam, the connection being at the base of the spine. J. R. Louis, a wealthy mining engineer of Los Angeles, who is paying for the trip and operation, and the father of the twins accompanied them to this city. Each twin, linked as they are, feels the other's emotions as plainly as he feels his own. When Lucio walks forward, Simplicio walks. When Lucio wants to sleep his brother feels drowsy. When he is hungry, so is Simplicio. There was no trouble until lately, when the usual order of things changed. Lucio was taken sick while his brother remained perfectly well. The twins are four years old. They were discovered by Mr. Louis while he was prospecting for gold in the archipelago a year ago.

Recently prominent physicians of Los Angeles and San Francisco declared the children could not be separated. It is the belief of others, however, that a successful operation can be performed.

Louis is wealthy, and believes that New Orleans surgeons can find a way to separate the twins without serious results.

COMMISSIONERS

LACK THE POWER

Flinn Township in Lawrence County Can Not Be Wiped Off the Map.

ATTORNEY GENERAL RULES

Another Chapter in the Troubles of Our Neighbor.—End Not Yet.

Flinn township in the eastern part of Lawrence county, can not be obliterated by action of the county commissioners according to an opinion rendered by attorney-general Honan.

Following a long period of factional strife in the township the commissioners in response to a petition from property holders voted to wipe out the township by dividing it up and annexing the portions to neighboring townships. According to the board's orders the obliteration took effect the first of the year and Flinn neighboring townships swallowed up the sections allotted.

The trustee and advisory board refused to recognize as legal the action of the commissioners and have proceeded to hold meetings and transact business as in the past.

Questions arising as to the government of the schools and the distribution of property, the county superintendent submitted several questions to the state superintendent involving the status of the township.

The state superintendent in turn submitted them to the Attorney General. His opinion is that the commissioners have the power to make alterations in number, names and boundaries of townships in new territory, but only to change boundaries in townships established prior to 1859. This being the case he ruled that the status of township officers remains unchanged by action of commissioners and that there is no allotment of property to be made.

What action will now be taken in the township and county is not known but litigation and further trouble and strife are anticipated.

MODERATE-PRICED PIGGERY
ACCOMMODATING BROOD SOWS

Excellent Pens for Shelter of Swine Both in Summer and Winter—Sanitary and Ventilating Conditions Are Superior.

In response to a query for plans for a moderate-priced house to accommodate 25 brooding sows and the usual complement of pigs, the Country Gentleman publishes the following:

For the brood sows it is best to have separate cots like those described by Professor Shaw of the Michigan

Fig. 1—Movable Cot for Brood Sow.

Station, from whose bulletin on the subject the following engravings are made. Sows and pigs should be kept away from the main or winter pen as much as possible. The sow should have plenty of exercise, plenty of green and succulent food, and access to the ground. These cots offer ideal summer conditions both to sow and litter.

Fig. 1 is a good cot for a sow that is about to farrow, since she cannot lie down close to the sides and thus overlie the young pigs. A cot like that shown in Fig. 2, however, gives better ventilation and is preferable in very hot weather. This is built 6x8, with vertical sides 3 feet high, with board roof, half pitch. The center boards on the sides are hung on hinges to open in hot weather. Note also the simple way of ventilating at the highest point of the roof. Cover the openings in the sides with woven wire. Such a cot contains 160 feet of stock lumber, 60 feet of matched stuff, 20 feet 4 by 6, 12 feet 4 by 4, 44 feet 2 by 4, and ought to be made by a carpenter in a couple of days. A floor can be made for it if desired for winter quarters, using two-inch stuff cut in lengths to rest on the skids, which are wider than the sills. Do not fasten the sills to the skids, as the latter are the first to rot.

Where the pigs do not come late in the fall or too early in the spring, it is better to use such a cot as the permanent home of the sow, keeping her there during the winter and compelling plenty of exercise by putting her food at a considerable distance from the cot, and not using too much bedding, but enough to keep her warm and comfortable.

Such cots are used also for fattening pigs. A movable hog cot is better in most cases than a permanent pen, as it keeps the pigs away from any central place, which is sure to become permanently contaminated, muddy in wet weather, dusty in dry, and dirty all the time.

If a permanent hog-house is to be built, it should be located on a knoll rather than in a moist hollow. Next, sufficient yardage, which you say you have, should be available. Large lots, where succulent food can be grown, are to be preferred to small exercise pens, which cannot be kept healthful in a warm climate. The pig should naturally be fattened in the late fall, and none carried over but the breeding stock. Experiments beyond number have shown that it is not profitable to feed either old or heavy hogs. The rule ought to be to have eight-months-old pigs weigh at least 200 pounds and fit for slaughter. Such pigs ought never to see the inside of a costly permanent pen, but ought to go to the slaughter house directly from the lots and the cots.

Use cement floors with overlays for the pigs to lie on. The drawing shows this clearly; the overlay being hinged to the side of the pen, so that it may be raised up and the floor beneath properly cleaned. Note also that it is in the corner of the pen and away from the feeding trough. It is bedded with fresh bedding once a week. The overlay here described is made from inch lumber, with inch cleats below to hold the boards together. A 2 by 4 surrounds the affair to hold the bedding in place, nailed to the boards and reinforced by a triangular piece of scantling nailed to the 2 by 4 and to the floor.

It is not necessary to go into details in the description of the pens. The cut shows how the 10 by 14 pen is arranged, with swing door at one corner, lifted by a rope leading to the front of the pen; abundant windows and ventilation; the widening out of the door frame to prevent the pigs from getting their noses under the door when closed; the feeding trough, with swinging door over it, to keep back the hogs when feeding, and partion between the pens high enough to keep the hogs from quarreling over them, but not high enough to prevent free movement of the air lengthwise of the stable.

ENGLISH BREED OF DORKING

Of the domesticated breeds of fowl in England the Dorking is among the oldest, ranking in this respect with the Games. There are those among poultry writers, who give it even greater historical significance, claiming to trace its ancestry back to the time of the Roman invasion of Britain. It takes its name from an English town in Surrey, where undoubtedly it first attained economic importance. From this source it has spread pretty much over England, and occupies the same position to the poultry industry of that country that the Plymouth Rocks and Wyandottes do to America. Pre-eminently it belongs to the all-purpose breeds, with a slightly preponderating advantage for table uses.

LONG-AGO FASHIONS

Interesting Matter in Old Magazines.

The Delineator's First Illustrations Pictured Women Who Wore Hoop-skirts—Feminine Finery Expensive Then as Now.

It was to illustrate the fashions of 40 years ago that the Delineator was started. We may turn the yellowed pages of musty magazines and find pictured there the women for whom these first Delineators were made.

The promenade of the day was along Broadway above Canal street. Here ultra-fashionable femininity walked with the mincing gait that was styled the "Grecian bend." They wore green gloves and carried green sun shades, "Metternich green," because the Princess Metternich had appeared at a ball at the Tuilleries in a dress of this hue. Little girls in gabrielle dresses and white Marseilles sun hats went by with their nurses. And among them the little girls who had come from the country were still wearing pantalettes. Matrons wore bonnets tied beneath their chins and modestly folded their shawls about them. Black lace shawls they had for summer, and palsy and cashmere shawls for colder weather. They paid for these all the way from $50 to several hundred or a thousand. An imported point lace shawl was even quoted at $3,000.

Oh, feminine finery could be expensive in those days as now! It is interesting to note the items which an old Delineator gives as the cost of a girl of the period: Boots, $10; stockings, $2; garters, 50 cents; silk underwear, $20; satin corset, $20; corset cover, $12; chemise, $20; cambric and steel hoops, $20; puffed haircloth panner, $4; flannel undershirt, $10; cambric undershirt, $18; walking skirt next to hoop, $8; over walking skirt, $10; gloves, $2.25; sun and snow shade in lace, $125; velvet walking suit, lace and sable trimmed, $1,000; hat, $75; total, $1,396.25.

But those undoubtedly were very high society figures, and higher because of the paper money of the day. Anyhow, the majority of the throng moving up and down lower Broadway bought their steel bustles at a dollar or less and their hoopskirts ranged in price from $1 up to $12. Their alpaca cost from 40 cents to $1.25 a yard, English winceys from 37 cents to 75 cents, and French poplins, $2.75 a yard. For their black silks they could pay from $3 to as high as $20 a yard. But a black silk "did" as a "best" dress for a lifetime.—Delineator.

All Off.

It was evident that the king was impatient. He strode to and fro across the throne room and pulled impatiently at his whiskers, ever and anon indulging in a gesture that indicated something akin to anger. Summoning all his courage, the prime minister approached his royal master and asked: "What seems to be the trouble, your majesty?"

"As ye know," the king replied, "we have completed all arrangements for the baptism of the crown prince next Sunday."

"Yes, sire."

"Well, it's off. We shall have to postpone it for a week, and I have always believed that it was unlucky to postpone a christening."

"But, your majesty, there is no reason for delay. The arrangements are perfect. I have seen to them myself. Why not have the ceremony next Sunday, as planned?"

"Can't do it, confound the luck! The moving picture people have just sent word that they can't possibly be ready."

Banner Carried by Cortes.

In the National museum in Mexico City there is a very interesting relic of the Spanish conquest of this country known as the Banner of the Conquest. It is said to be the original standard carried by Cortes in his wars of conquest in the land of the Aztecs.

This banner was for many years in the church of San Hipolito in Mexico City, where a solemn annual ceremony known as the "procession of the banner" was celebrated up to the year 1812.

The archbishop of Mexico, the viceroy and nobles and the church and state authorities and dignitaries took part in this ceremony, which consisted of the carrying in the state of the Banner of the Conquest.

As this was a commemoration of Spanish successes over the native Mexican races, there has been no desire to revive the ceremony since the independence of New Spain secured in 1821.

Disqualified.

"Very few photographers seem to enjoy having their own pictures taken," said the observer of human nature.

"That's true," replied the artist; "when a photographer gets through with all his exacting customers there's no use of telling him to assume an easy attitude and look pleasant."

A Bad Combination.

"What's the matter with your speeches?" inquired the orator.

"The seasoning is wrong," replied the old campaigner. "You try to put so much ginger in them that they have to be taken with a grain of salt."

Home Town

TO HAVE BEAUTIFUL LAWN

In Small Space a Natural Garden is Better Than Any Formal Arrangement.

The development of the beautiful is the aim of landscape gardening, differing from gardening in its common sense, in embracing the whole scene about a house, which it softens and refines. In it we seek to embody our ideal of a home by collecting and combining beautiful forms in vegetation, surfaces of ground, buildings and walks in the landscape surrounding us.

Every place should be a picture by itself, having an individuality all its own, completely harmonizing with the home which it surrounds, attractive to the general public and enjoyable to the owner. We should as far as possible conform in a general way to the prevailing custom on the street as regards the use of fences between the buildings and the street lines.

The working part of the grounds, such as the kitchen garden, clothes yard, etc., should be brought together directly connecting with the kitchen and cellar. They can thus be admirably separated from the ornamental part of the grounds by lines of shrubs or a vine-covered lattice or wire fence.

In arranging our pleasure grounds we should provide a place conveniently accessible to the living rooms where the family can sit out of doors without being exposed to the gaze of the public. Walks are useful but not beautiful, and should only be used where they are actually required.

We should keep the centers of the lawn spaces open, making the plantations on the edges and not dot them nursery fashion all over the entire lawn. We thus secure the full value of the lawn area and make maintenance easier. We can then provide spaces for flowers, preferably of a perennial nature in the foreground of our shrub masses and not in separate or scattered beds.

As a general thing the naturalistic gardening should be adopted on the small place in preference to the formal. We are thus able to avoid straight lines, creating a picture using the green grass as our canvas, framing the whole in with a well selected collection of trees and shrubs; confining the tender and annual plants to the flower garden, as they are costly, temporary and often in bad taste when scattered promiscuously over the entire place. The house is the main feature, and all plantings must be done under the influence of its character and situation, the views from the windows suggesting the arrangement and where the plantings should have their origin. In the very nature of things no two gardens can be just alike; a charming feature in one garden may not be allowable in another, either through lack of space, difference in exposure or natural incongruity.

CHOICE OF STYLES IS LARGE

In "Structural Decoration" There is Hardly a Limit to the Many in Vogue.

"Structural decoration" may best be explained by considering one well-known example of it—the Elizabethan, most picturesque and elaborate of the styles now popularly imitated. In the real Elizabethan the wooden framework was made of great trees, solid oak, squared off and mortised together solidly. If the tree had been curved, the beam was curved. And the beam was as thick as the wall itself, and appeared on the inside, as well as the outside of the house. The cement was filled in between these great beams, and the dark wood, in contrast with the stucco filling, made the decoration of the house—a truly honest and structural kind of ornament, which we imitate by fastening thin planks over and across our "Elizabethan" dwellings. Our own "Colonial" dwellings had their charm, too—the charm of perfect simplicity and excellent proportion. Like the gentlemen who built them they are dignified, reliable, honest. The bungalow is both simple in line and structural in decoration, but too often squatty in proportion, and, if unmodified, is apt to be a most uncomfortable dwelling for this climate of extremes, having been developed to its present form where there was no heat in summer, and no cold in winter. A new type of house has arisen of late, calling itself "craftsman's houses." It is an attempt to adapt to modern conditions all the good points in all the styles named; and very often the attempt is successful, and the result, belonging to no "style," is quite happy.

Quick-Growing Trees Planted.

Trees which will grow large enough in five or ten years to afford the pedestrian shelter from the hot rays of the sun during the summer months have been planted around the department of the interior building and also along the south side of F street northwest between Seventh and Ninth streets.

They are fast-growing shade trees such as are planted in all parts of the residential sections. They will, it is believed, do much to keep the sidewalk in their vicinity cooler than has been the case during the hot days.

Cooking in Casserole.

Casserole cookery has gradually worked itself into great popularity until now in almost every home some form of casserole is used. Since the study of foods and feeding has become more common the housewife begins to realize the value of slow cooking of foods, hence the popular use of the fireless cooker and the casserole.

Anything that requires slow cooking without browning, may be cooked in this stone-covered dish. If the browning is desired, it may be done before the food is put into the casserole.

Long, slow cooking of meats after the outside has been seared to retain the juices, is conducive to retaining the best and most nutritious elements of the food and also it makes the flavor of meats far superior to other methods of cooking.

Chicken in Casserole.—Separate the chicken as for frying, wipe perfectly dry and brown in a little fat. When the pieces are all nicely browned, place them in the casserole with a pint of chicken broth made by stewing the wing tips and the feet. Put on the cover and cook in a moderate oven for an hour and a half. Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter in a pan, add a dozen potato balls, a dozen carrot balls and a few small onions; as soon as brown add to the casserole with more water if necessary, and cook until the vegetables are tender. Do not remove the cover after putting in the vegetables. Serve from the casserole. Beefsteak, mutton and any meat may be cooked in this manner. The coarse and tough cuts of meat are made tender and savory by this process of cooking.

Rice and Meat in Casserole.—Line the bottom and sides of a buttered casserole with a cupful of cold cooked rice. Season any chopped meat with onion juice, celery salt, herbs and salt, moisten with butter and eggs and fill the dish with the chopped meat. Cover with the rice and cook slowly for an hour. Serve with tomato sauce.

Bananas With Sauce in Casserole.—Pare and scrape half a dozen bananas to remove the coarse threads, cut in halves, both lengthwise and crosswise and put into a casserole. Melt a small glass of currant jelly, pour over them the juice of half a lemon and a tablespoonful of butter. Cover and cook in a slow oven for half an hour.

Pears baked in a casserole with a little butter and sugar are perfectly delicious. Let them brown the last half hour. Pears need long cooking, often a half a day to make them rich and tender.

SOME people are so fond of ill-luck that they run half way to meet it.

Sandwiches.

Sandwiches may be made of several kinds of bread: white, whole wheat, graham, oatmeal, Boston brown and rye. The butter to be used for spreading sandwiches should be softened and creamed. Almost any kind of meat may be used in sandwiches as filling. When using meat in sandwiches it should be chopped fine and seasoned well. It is often necessary to moisten the meat with cream or salad dressing to make it sufficiently moist to spread.

It is often necessary to make the sandwiches several hours before serving. To keep them moist wrap them in a cloth wrung out of cold water, then fold in a dry towel. Sandwiches will keep several hours in this way and keep perfectly moist.

Egg Sandwiches.—Chop several hard-cooked eggs, season with salt, pepper and a grain of mustard. Spread over well-buttered bread and cut in any desired form.

Cucumber Sandwiches.—Put slices of cucumber on well-buttered bread, sprinkle with salt and pepper and serve at once, as the cucumber will lose its freshness.

Onion and Celery Sandwiches.—Chop celery and onion fine, mix with a little dressing or olive oil, season with salt and pepper and spread on buttered bread.

Nuts and dates chopped and rubbed smooth with cream make good filling. Walnuts browned in a very little butter, chopped and mixed with grated maple sugar is another good mixture.

Take a cup of freshly grated coconut, one-fourth of a cup of chopped almonds, one teaspoonful of rose water and a tablespoonful of powdered sugar; mix well and use as filling for sandwiches.

Stuffed olives chopped, mixed with mayonnaise.

Maraschino cherries chopped and mixed with cream cheese.

Blanched and browned almonds, chopped, mixed with boiled dressing. Cottage cheese and olives, with mayonnaise.

One-half cup each of preserved ginger and candied orange peel, chopped fine; mix with three tablespoonfuls of thick sweet cream.

Take two bananas, mixed with two tablespoonfuls of maraschino cordial and two tablespoonfuls of thick sweet cream, sweetened with honey.

Chop candied ginger and mix with range juice.

Decoration for Fur Hats

THE home milliner has been able to find a turban covered with fur of almost any description and almost any shape. The matter of trimming it at home is a problem of easy solution. Fur turbans are not exactly trimmed—they are decorated. The soft shapes, made without wire, carry bows, rosettes or motifs, applied flat to the body of the hat; or tinsel and silk roses, a smart cockade or an algrette fastened on with an ornament, all easy to procure and the trimming easy of accomplishment.

Fashion permits the trimming to be placed anywhere, from back to front, at the sweet will and sense of style possessed by the wearer. Where the turban is made by covering a buckram shape with fur, plumes and fancy feathers, wings and ribbons are all available. The soft caps are more simply trimmed.

Soft caps of fur or fur fabrics are easily made at home. The crown is in four sections, like a boy's jockey cap, and the brim a slightly curved collar, which is wide enough to turn up about the crown. This is lined with silk or satin. A fine wire may be introduced in the outside brim edge to advantage. It should be put in between the fabric and the lining, and will serve to keep the hat shapely.

Such hats of plush or fur are very comfortable—a real protection to the head, and the becomingness is a new discovery. It is all in adjusting the right shape to the head in the right way.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

CHECKED SILK WAIST.

This most attractive waist is of checked old blue and white foulard, with pretty yoke of old blue cashmere. The gumpie, undersleeves, and frills are of white tulle. The girl is of plain blue liberty.

THE NEW SHOE BUCKLES

Cut Steel and Rhinestone Predominate for Decorating Evening Slipper This Season.

Cut steel and rhinestone predominate in the shoe buckle for decorating the evening slipper this season. In the cut steel, which has a very refined appearance, the designs are very beautiful. The buckles made of this material seem to be the leading ones.

They are made oblong and large, and though this is actually the choice among the metals, there are other sizes and other metals still available, for though it is quite new, it does not exclude any of the others that with some are still popular.

Rhinestone buckles are favored next to steel and there is a wide variety of these from which to make a choice.

Small and large ornaments, square and round ornaments, oblong and star-shaped ornaments—in fact, in the rhinestone one can get an ornament in almost any shape a person desires.

Butterfly Note Paper.

The butterfly, a dominant novelty of this season's fashions, trails its frivolous wings across the latest note paper. Flights of sulphur-colored insects upon a delicate green ground, and of bright, soft blue ones over a cream white surface, none of them too perceptible are seen. It is a fanciful idea, to have these decorated missives as frivolous and brief as their own short lives.

CONCERNING USE OF PLUMES

Newest Trimming in Millinery Shows Styles Such as Our Mothers Never Dreamed Of.

The newest trimming in millinery emphasizes the use of plumes. Such plumes! The word conjures up an infinite variety of styles of which our mothers or grandmothers knew nothing, and fair women of today can be doubly grateful for the efforts of milliners.

Garlands of plumes are used on broad, low hats. They are spotted and flecked with color, and some are made of layers of different shades, giving a wonderfully iridescent effect.

On velvet turbans the use of a single plume attached at the front, and extending toward the back in a slanting line, is quite evident. This line for the plume is used on large hats as well. And speaking of the wide, flat shapes leads us to the introduction of ostrich feathers to edge the brim. Two successful Paris milliners have done this with great effect.

Feather rosettes are made of ostrich plumes. Concentric circles of cut feathers are placed around a jeweled center. At the side of a turban or on the upturned brim of a large velvet hat this new type of ornament is extremely chic.

A feather band is being used on many large hats. Black and white plumes are favored for these ornaments. They are detachable, hooking at one side. This idea is attractive, for a change of trimming means a change of hat.

To Freshen a Lace Waist.

A tight-cut lingerie waist of white lace and embroidery gains wonderfully in elaborateness by the addition of the latest French fancy. This is a broad band of net in a pastel shade, embroidered in soutache braid of the same color and applied just over the bust. With this is worn one of the new neck scarfs of chiffon, in a color that exactly matches and with the ends embroidered in the soutache. Both of these are easily made up at home by any clever needlewoman, and will go a long way toward hiding the deficiencies of a pretty but aging lingerie waist. The chiffon scarf is especially charming when embroidered its entire length with large coin dots in satin stitch.

Cretonne Lampshades.

The very newest and prettiest thing in home decoration is the lampshade of shirred cretonne or flowered silk. For these, heavy wire frames are purchased, the round shape being the best. The cretonne or silk is then shirred tightly under this frame, and clamped or glued to it. A narrow border of furniture gimp conceals the joining place.

In tapestry, this variety of lampshade becomes really gorgeous. The idea, of course, can be applied in any of these materials to candle shades as well.

HINTS ON COOKING GAME

Success is Sure if the Cook Will Follow These Simple Directions.

Never wash game inside or out; merely wipe it with a cloth wrung out in hot water.

Badly shot birds should not be hung long.

The length of time a bird is hung must depend on the weather, the state of the bird and individual taste.

Snipe, woodcock and plover should never be "drawn."

Tie the birds, if possible, with string, instead of using skewers, for the latter make holes through which the juices escape.

Tie a slice of fat bacon over the breast of each bird to keep it from drying.

Baste all game very thoroughly; otherwise it will become dry and shriveled.

Game, except partridges and pheasants, is usually laced slightly underdone. This is especially the case with teal and wild duck.

Never pour gravy over game, but serve it separately in a hot tureen.

The correct accompaniments to all game are bread sauce, fried crumbs, good gravy and potatoes fried in any fashion.

NOVEL AND USEFUL BRACKET

Can Be Put Up Anywhere in the House or Folded Into Small Space.

To those who have to make the most of every inch of space in home or office the bracket devised by a New York man will appeal strongly. The bracket consists of two heavy wire arms, shaped like a letter "U" and having lateral extensions at the ends which fasten in two plates that are screwed into wall or door. Below and between these plates is a third, which holds a pair of supporting arms, the ends of which fasten in circular loops in the longitudinal arms and hold them upright. The whole apparatus can be put up anywhere in a few minutes and taken down as easily. When not in use the supporting arms can be slipped out of place and the bracket folded against wall or door. A board can be placed across the top of needed.

Mother's Fried Cakes.

Stir to a cream two cups of sugar and four tablespoonfuls of softened butter or drippings. Add one cup each of milk and water, two well beaten eggs, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder sifted in four cups of flour, a teaspoonful of salt and cinnamon or nutmeg to flavor. Add enough more flour to make a soft dough, cut in rings or twists and drop into a kettle of boiling fat. When the cakes rise and brown on one side turn deftly on the other without piercing the cruller, then as soon as browned lift out on brown paper. When nearly cool roll in powdered sugar if desired.

Sweet Pickled Apples.

A delicious pickle is thus, made from sweet apples. Cut in halves through the stem, leaving the core in and the skin on. Put three cloves in each half as in pickling peaches, then make a sirup, allowing for every pound of apples three pounds of sugar and a pint of vinegar. Add a few cassia buds or pieces of stick cinnamon, put the fruit in and cook it until it can be pierced with a splint. Pack the apples in jars, cook the sirup a little longer until thickened and pour over the fruit.

Molded Snow.

Mix three tablespoonfuls cornstarch with cold water to pour, add to one pint of water, and cook ten minutes; add two tablespoonfuls sugar, juice of lemon and the whites of two eggs beaten stiff.

Custard Sauce for Same.—Scald one pint of milk; mix four tablespoonfuls sugar, two teaspoonfuls cornstarch, add the yolks of the two eggs, quarter cup of cold milk. Stir in scalded milk, and cook five minutes.

Good, Soft Gingerbread.

Four cups of flour, one-half cup of butter or lard, one cup of molasses, one cup of milk, one teaspoon of soda and the same of ginger. Heat the molasses and add the shortening and milk. Sift the soda and flour together, while dry. Have a buttered pan ready and add the liquid to the flour by degrees, stirring as you pour. Bake in a hot oven.

Iron Rust.

To remove iron rust, dampen cloth, rub on cream of tartar, rub well, and let stand an hour, then wash.

Menu Consists of Oyster Cocktail, Oyster Stew, Chicken With Oyster Sauce and Deviled Oyster With Plain Salad.

A bride-housekeeper entertaining several young couples rather informally in the evening made the function an oyster supper with great success.

For the centerpiece of the table the services of a wideawake florist had been called into requisition. He constructed of Autumnal asters of daintily blended colors a huge R representing, it is almost needless to say, the letter which marks the opening of the oyster season.

This was so constructed as to lie flat upon the table, and all around it were grouped favors representing little oyster shells, each of which contained an inexpensive pin set with seed pearls. From the shell ribbons of a color that combined prettily with that of the asters radiated to each cover, and by pulling these at the end of the feast each guest received his or her gift.

The place cards were gray tinted, and were decorated with sketches of oyster shells, sea moss, etc., and on each was written a quotation regarding the shellfish. Guests amused themselves between courses in recalling the names of the authors.

The hors d'oeuvre dishes were nothing less than natural oyster shells, extra large ones being selected and thoroughly cleaned for the purpose.

The menu consisted of oyster cocktail, oyster stew, boiled chicken with oyster sauce, deviled oysters in rice cups next, with a plain salad, and for dessert ice cream molded in the form of oyster shells served with oyster crackers, coated in the way so popular now with chocolate.

The oyster stew quoted was somewhat original. It was made by this rule: In butter the size of an egg, which has been nicely browned in the pan, cut up several stalks of celery and cook the latter slowly until thoroughly done. Add a quart of oysters with the liquor and cool until the edges curl. After the curl appears cook about ten minutes longer, season with salt and pepper if liked. Serve with oyster crackers crisped in the oven.

The deviled oysters, too, may require a word of direction in the interest of young housekeepers. To prepare them a tablespoonful of chopped onion and the same quantity of chopped green pepper are cooked for five minutes in two tablespoonfuls of butter. To this is added half a cup of strained juice from the oysters, a tablespoonful of lemon juice, a tablespoonful of tomato catsup, a teaspoon of prepared mustard, a pinch of cayenne and two cupfuls of oysters chopped. Simmer five minutes and serve very hot in rice made by the recipe which follows:

Half cook enough rice to fill two cups, and add to it three ounces of melted butter. Mold in small cups or tin molds which have previously been wet with ice water and set away in the refrigerator to chill. Just before serving unmold the rice, and with a small spoon hollow out each shape. Brush inside and out with melted butter and crisp in a hot oven, using a baking slide to avoid breaking them. When nicely brown they will be ready for the oysters.

Spanish Rice.

This is also a good way of using sweet green peppers. Cook a cupful of rice in two quarts of boiling water, slightly salted. Let it boil fast twenty minutes, or until, by testing a grain, you find it tender, but not broken. Drain off every drop of water through the colander and set this, with the rice in it, within an open oven to dry off for a minute.

Turn into a hot, deep dish and pour over it this sauce:

Seed and scald three peppers; when cold, mince fine and stir into two tablespoonfuls of butter, heated to hissing in a frying pan. Shake over the fire to heat the peppers and pour upon the rice. With a silver fork open the mounded rice slightly to let the sauce sink in, and serve.

Perfect Chocolate Cake.

Three squares unsweetened chocolate, four eggs, one and one-half cups white sugar, one-half cup butter, one-half cup milk, one and one-half cups sifted flour, two level teaspoonfuls baking powder, one teaspoon vanilla, salt. Melt chocolate over hot water, beat egg yolks and sugar thoroughly, add the creamed butter, stir till very light; add melted chocolate, then milk and flour after sifting three times, and baking powder. Beat the whites of eggs to stiff froth and add last with vanilla. Bake in a slow oven about one hour. Make one very large loaf or two small ones.

Baked Eggs With Cheese.

Grease cup-cake tins or egg cups, salt an egg in each tin, pepper and sauté and sprinkle generously with grated cheese. Bake in quick oven until set. These are much better than fried and more nutritious. If set in a pan of water it will add greatly to their delicacy.

Radish and Olive Salad.

Cut red radishes in thin slices, the olive in long strips and arrange both on lettuce leaves. Just before serving pour over a French dressing.

Practical Fashions

A WALKING SKIRT.

No skirt is better liked for the tailor made suit than the plain plaited model. It is one of these which we show in our illustration. The skirt has gores and fits snugly all around the body. At knee depth a band of trimming apparently holds in the plaits, but this may be dispensed with without in any way affecting the garment. Front and back of the skirt are in panels, and this is an absolute requirement of the newest models. The design is suitable for taffetas, messaline, natte, cheviot, and mixtures as well as for plain fabrics.

The pattern (5273) is cut in sizes 22 to 32 inches waist measure. Medium size requires 3 1/4 yards of 44 inch material.

To procure this pattern send 10 cents to "Pattern Department," of this paper. Write name and address plainly, and be sure to give size and number of pattern.

RAG DOLL AND CLOTHES.

The rag doll is the safest for little children, and they always seem to love it better than the less repressible babies. In the pattern illustrated a design is given for constructing the doll itself and also its drawers, petticoat and dress. It takes very little material for any of these articles, and very little time to make them. Flannel or felt will be best for the doll.

The pattern (2704) is cut in 3 sizes, for dolls of 14, 18, 22 inches in length. To make the doll 1/2 of a yard of 36 inch material will be required; for the dress 1/2 yard of 36 inch goods and 1 yard of edging; for the bonnet 1/4 yard of 36 inch material and 1 1/2 yard of edging; for the drawers and petticoat 1/4 yard of 36 inch material and 2 1/2 yard of edging.

To procure this pattern send 10 cents to "Pattern Department," of this paper. Write name and address plainly, and be sure to give size and number of pattern.

Miscellaneous Marksmen.

"I'm rather a poor hunter," said the man who likes outdoor life. "I miss everything I shoot at."

"That's all right," replied the guide, who has a proper regard for his personal safety. "But do you miss everything you aren't shooting at?"—Washington Star.

A Recommendation.

"Typewriters ought to have no difficulty in getting jobs."

"Of course not, when they have their business at their fingers' ends."

Thumb Tacks in Heels.

Thumb tacks driven into the outside of the heel, where it is most likely to wear down, are the invention of a girl who was ten miles from a shoemaker. This would answer splendidly for the country, but there is danger of slipping on hardwood floors or the pavements.

Very Strange.

"I've observed one strange thing," says the Philosopher of Folly, "and that is, that the coming man is always on the way has got there."

Greatest Massacre World Has

PERSIA'S PATIENCE WANING

Persian Consul General at New York
In Transmitting to the American People a Protest Against Russian and British Exactions, Gives Warning That if They Continue to Interfere There Will Be Trouble.

New York, Jan. 11.—H. H. Topakyan, the consul general of Persia, informed the newspapers through Harry
P. Disbecker, legal adviser to the con-sulate, that he had received from his government a protest addressed to the American people against the high-handed conduct of Russia in Persia.

While Mr. Disbecker was talking in the consul general's office at 225 Fifth avenue, a voice came on the phone which said that it belonged to the consul general. It added this to Mr. Dis-becker's statement: "If Great Britain and Russia continue to interfere in the affairs of Persia there will be the greatest massacre the world has ever seen."

"The consul general," said Mr. Dis-becker, "has received a long letter addressed to the United States by the grand vizier, the sense of which is that the Persian government accused England and Russia of bad faith and an apparent plot to destroy Persian nationality."

"Some years ago, when Great Britain permitted a large loan to be financed in Russia by Persia, Great Britain agreed that Russia should not be permitted to make a military occupation of Persia to enforce payment.
Russia violated that agreement with the connivance of Great Britain and continues to interfere with the Persian government. England has put obstacles in the way of refunding the loan and has forced Persia to submit to Russian commanders. The government of Persia does not believe that the situation is comprehended in this country, and that view, as I understand, is the reason the grand vizier addresses the people of America."

SOME ACTIVE SHOOTING

Former Partners in a Georgia Town
Come Together.

Abbeville, Ga., Jan. 11.—Three men are dead and one mortally wounded after a feud fight near here. Those killed are Matthews Wilson, James Nixon and Noah White. N. P. Wilson is mortally wounded. All are prom-

White's home to talk over matters.
There were hot words at once and soon all were using pistols, including Mrs. White, who came to her husband's aid when she saw him attacked by three men. It is said White killed Nixon and was himself killed by Matthews Wilson, who was at once shot to death by Mrs. White. It is said that Mrs. White fatally wounded N. P. Wilson. Mrs. White was not wounded.

OLD SORES DUE TO DISEASED BLOOD

Every symptom of an old sore suggests diseased blood. The inflammation, discharge, discolored flesh, and the fact that local applications have no permanent effect toward healing
the ulcer, shows that deep down in the system there is a morbid cause for the sore. But more convincing proof that bad blood is the cause for these places is furnished by the fact that even removing the sore or ulcer by surgical operation does not cure; they always return. Nature will heal any sore if the blood is pure and healthy,
but until the circulation is cleansed
of all impure matter and supplied with nourishing and plasmic qualities
the infected condition of flesh is OBLIGED to remain. S.S.S. heals
Old Sores in a perfectly natural way.
It goes into the blood, removes the impurities and morbid matters, adds nourishing qualities to this vital fluid, and brings about the very conditions that are necessary before any sore can heal. S.S.S.
is a perfect blood purifier,
acting directly on the circulation through the stomach and digestive members. Its use makes rich, red, healthy blood, which nourishes all flesh tissues instead of infecting them with the virulent matter which keeps old sores open. Special book on Old
